An Annual Loss

FIRE TAKES A REGRETTABLE TOLL of life and property in Canada every year. In the winter months, especially, few days pass without the occurrence of tragic fires, frequently involving loss of life. Too often the victims are helpless children. Many of these fires are preventable and Canadians are constantly being reminded of the need for more attention to fire prevention and more education in methods of fire protection and control. The recent report of the Dominion Fire Commissioner, C. A. Thomson tells of the loss of life and property due to fires in the past year, and of the main causes of these fires, many of which, the report shows, could have been prevented.

Much Damage To Property

There were 54,500 fires reported in Canada in 1949, the year covered by the report. These fires resulted in damage to property amounting to $65,100,044, and the loss of 422 lives. Property valued at $15,000,000 was not insured and so was a complete loss to the owners. Overheated stoves, furnaces and furnace pipes were the causes of many of the 39,000 fires in residences, which resulted in losses amounting to nearly $5,000,000. Defective wiring was another major cause of fires in homes and buildings, and the financial losses attributed to this cause was estimated to be $4,728,330. Careless smokers started fires which destroyed $3,141,899 worth of property in the year. However, this figure was nearly half a million dollars less than the one for the previous year. Fires of unknown origin caused the greatest loss of any one group, the value of property destroyed in this way being $30,509,284.

Arson Not A Common Crime

Incendiarism is not a major cause of fires in Canada. The 54,500 fires in Canada in 1949, only 946 were attributed to arson. Almost all the figures given in the report show a decrease from previous years, and this is taken as an encouraging sign, particularly in view of the increasing population and the number of new homes and buildings which have been constructed in the past few years. However, in comparison with other countries, fire losses in Canada are considered to be too high, and there is concern over the number of fires which are caused by carelessness and lack of proper precautions. Much of the responsibility for fire prevention lies with the individual citizen, and there is need for greater interest on the part of the public in cutting down the regrettable and wasteful loss of life and property which results from fires each year.

Manitoba Expects Record Tourist Trade This Year

WINNIPEG. — Manitoba's 1951 tourist trade is expected to top last year's record of $22,000,000, W. B. Fraser, assistant director of the bureau of travel and publicity, disclosed.

Supporting this view is the fact that even with the 1950 flood, which curtailed traffic last spring, Americans spent more money in the province than in any previous year. The number of tourists, however, was down.

This year's tourist trade started with a bang. In January, 177 per cent. more U.S. visitors came to the province than in 1950. Inquiries to Ottawa, covering the whole dominion, have doubled.

With prospects of vacations in 1952 poor because of the world situation, Americans are expected to make an all-out effort to have a good holiday this year, Mr. Fraser said.

NOW! Get Quick Relief PILES

A Candid and Honest Discussion on a Delicate Subject

Since the dawn of civilization, medical men have been fighting a ceaseless war — to save lives and to conquer dread diseases.

When they discover a new "miracle" drug or surgical technique, the news goes round the world. Yet all the while, other "unsung" men of science are working equally hard to relieve suffering caused by less dramatic, "everyday" maladies. Among them is perhaps the most painful of all — PILES.

A Subject Seldom Discussed
Pile sufferers are burdened with a double hardship. They yearn for relief, but hesitate to seek it because of false pride and embarrassment. Yet to the man or woman who knows the agonizing torment of itching, burning piles, the truth about their trouble may mean a world of difference in business efficiency, in social pleasure, in good looks and vitality!

What Causes Piles?
Piles are not a primary ailment. Conditions which cause them never originate in the parts affected. At first, piles are simply inflamed and distended "varicose veins" in the delicate membranes of the rectum. A common cause is hepatic congestion (torpidity of the liver) which results in ordinary, everyday constipation.

IMPORTANT! Here is frank information — in non-technical language—regarding an annoying, painful, often embarrassing physical condition which now afflicts countless thousands — you, perhaps, among them. Far too frequently this condition, at first superficial in itself, can be Nature's warning of more serious trouble to come. We believe everyone who suffers from this condition owes it to his or her own personal comfort to read the statement below.
LEONHARDT PROPRIETARIES, LTD.

How Piles Develop

As the liver function slows down, blood flow from the lower bowel to the liver is retarded and small rectal veins swell with blood. Then, usually, constipation starts. Hard, clogging masses form in the lower bowel — irritating and bruising the distended rectal veins. Blood stagnates in and around areas, until the tiny veins become greatly inflamed, lumpy, horribly painful.

This agonizing pain aggravated by constipation, is "self-perpetuating". The constipation adds to the itching, burning pain and soreness—which in turn increases the constipation — which then tends to further enlarge the swollen veins until they become pile tumors. If this vicious circle is not broken, there is only one choice — chronic piles or the surgeon's knife!

Why Face This Choice?
Decide now to break this vicious circle! Many others have done so, thanks to an able professional man who, more than 50 years ago, began an intensive study of piles — their cause and effect. Knowing that piles are caused by congested conditions inside the body, he wisely searched for an internal medication that would relieve hepatic congestion, stimulate bile flow, gently ease constipation and improve circulation of the blood in the lower bowel — thus helping Nature herself promote a healthier condition in the sore, painful areas where piles are found. Finally, in his own practice, he devised a formula of medically-proven elements — small tablets taken by mouth — which showed amazing results in 86 out of 100 cases that came to his personal, professional attention!

Sufferers Acclaim Hem-Roid
He gave his formula the trade name of Hem-Roid — using it first in his own practice, later supplying it to friends and acquaintances. In 1904 he sold the formula and name. Since that time, millions of packages have been bought by the public throughout the world — and countless satisfied users of Hem-Roid testify to its quick, efficient action.

Accept This 10-Day Offer!

Naturally — long-standing, neglected cases of piles may call for a doctor's advice. But for average pile conditions, we know nothing better than Hem-Roid to give you the relief and results you want. To prove it, we make this special 10-day offer!

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

A Moment Of Bliss

By Louis Arthur Cunningham

TO THE many who passed down the street below the great elm on the corner of the common she was just a pale, sickly woman watching wistfully, enviously from behind a chill window-pane those healthier and happier than she.

But they scarcely did Miss Kitty justice. True, she did look with wistful eyes at the bustle and vim of life; she was only twenty-four. But she knew life better than many of the quick because she had her thin hand forever on its pulse. Just a cold pane of glass? Ah, no! It was far more to her. It looked upon a vast stage where the whole world acted.

Each day they performed for her. Youth and Age, Wealth and Poverty passed in the street. Rich men, poor men, and Miss Kitty, whom they all missed none; until the lovely came.

Across the street from her window was a great old elm whose leaves in summer sighed soft whisperings of love. And there each night they met. To Miss Kitty, who could walk very little because she was lame and her heart had a queer, capricious trick of almost forgetting to work sometimes, the alert, living grace of the lovers was a wondrous thing. Once in a great, great while she ventured out with her brother Aaron who worked in the iron foundry. With Aaron's great, strong arm to support her it was easier. But these two . . . what did they know of pained inactivity, of hopeless solitude?

"What would I not give to be in her place for a minute, for just a little minute!" sighed the invalid as she watched them when they met beneath the elm. "To stand there in the shadow and wait for his coming as she does! To feel his arms around me! To be kissed once . . . only once!" In that desire was the supreme emotion of Miss Kitty's life. In the evenings the girl would wait for her lover and as the days went by their love grew more strong and flowered. The invalid watched them happily. Sometimes she could fancy herself in that girl's place and see the tall, fair-haired fellow stop to caress her.

Then one night they quarreled, perhaps because their love was too great, too delicately reactive to the jarring unkindness of life. They separated in anger. They walked away in different directions from the old elm, which looked d-solate and forlorn. Miss Kitty cried that night. Her heart ached almost as much as her crippled body; she felt as sad as either of them who had parted. It seemed as though the bottom had dropped out of life and the music of love turned to clashing discord. Miss Kitty cried herself to sleep, and into a beautiful dream from which she awakened with a smile on her lips. How brightly the sun shone that morning and how merrily the birds in the old elm sang their carols to the dawn!

She did not come that night. The boy came, waited long beneath the elm and walked disconsolate away. The invalid thought, a little unkindly, of the foolish girl of a girl who was so slow to forgive. In her wan, wistful face was longing and hope.

That night Aaron was late. It would be nine o'clock before he would return. Miss Kitty spent an ecstatic half-hour with a hand mirror, arranging her pretty, rebellious hair. She had dressed herself in her very great evening gown; until the lovely came.

At dusk the invalid felt her way down the stairs. How long they seemed, how rough and hard. Yet they were the alley way to Paradise. Beneath the elm, just as the dark descended, in the gloom of the leafy branches Miss Kitty leaned against the gnarled trunk. The hard bark was a velvet cushion against her shoulders.

Her heart performed strange little capricious when she saw him turn the corner. He was walking quickly. There was eagerness in his step. And when he saw the slim figure in the shadow of the tree, his step was quicker still and joy was in his outstretched arms.

"My dear!" he murmured. Miss Kitty saw the stars go tumbling around the moon. His arms went about her body, enveloping her, pressing her to his breast till it hurt . . . hurt gloriously. And his lips stayed on her mouth a long time long enough for her thin hand to pass gently through his hair.

She watched him cross the common. She knew what he had experienced . . . expectancy, ecstasy, disillusion, confusion. Often he glanced back to see if another girl had come. What had he said? It was a mere blur of speech. All she recalled was "mistake . . . another." To him it had been bitterly ludicrous; to her, life's happiness compressed in a moment of bliss.

Back up the long alley of stairs to the heaven of memory Miss Kitty went. Her limbs pained, her body ached, her heart . . . well, at least, her spirit sang and was glad. The next night the girl was there. Miss Kitty smiled when he hesitated before he kissed her. Then they walked away, he telling her something at which they both laughed. Do Not Sow
Frozen Wheat
Too Deep

SWIFT CURRENT.—Dealing with the value of frozen wheat for seed, Dr. J. B. Harrington, of the field husbandry branch of the University of Saskatchewan, stresses the necessity of not seeding frozen wheat too deeply, regardless of germination tests.

It is to be remembered that when seeding frozen seed it is important not to sow deeper than absolutely necessary to get the seeds into moist soil. Wheat that was fairly heavily frosted will not only be lower in germination, but young seedlings that do emerge will be most sensitive to depth of seeding, and then later sensitive to spring frosts and growth conditions.

Authorities also state that the rate of seeding will also have to be heavier than undamaged wheat in order to get the same stand.

Frosted Grain

Where frosted wheat, oats and barley is being used for seed, always increase the rate of seeding in proportion to the decrease in germination, then sow the grain as shallowly as possible to get seed into moisture, advises A. G. Kusch, cerealist at the Experimental Station at Scott, Sask.

Extensive frost damage to cereal grains occurred over a large area of the prairie provinces in 1950 and the damage was especially severe in Saskatchewan. Germination tests on cereal grains grown around Scott where frost damage was severe, indicated that wheat generally will give satisfactory germination, but oats and barley will not. Many samples of these grains, when tested, gave germination percentages below 40, with only a few samples showing 50 per cent.

When these frost-damaged grains were tested in soil, the number of plants emerging did not equal the recorded germination percentage. The lower the percentage germination of the sample, the more serious was the failure of plants to emerge as the depth of planting was increased. In addition, there were many weak plants present that would not survive under the average field conditions encountered in the spring.

Mr. Kusch adds, as the extent to which germination of cereal grains has been impaired by frost cannot be determined by examining the seed, all farmers concerned are urged to make, or have a germination test made, on the grain they intend to use for seed. Wheat may appear to be damaged severely by frost and yet show good germination and the reverse may be true. The germination of oats and barley may be seriously affected and still show little external signs of frost damage. In cases where germination percentages are low, it will be advisable to purchase good seed to ensure a satisfactory crop.—Farm News.

Got Its Name From Cree
Word "Kis-is-skatche-wan"

Meaning Swift Current Or Bad River—First White Man Entered Province In 1892—First Newspaper, Saskatchewan Herald At Battleford

WEYBURN.—The Province of Saskatchewan got its name from the Cree word "Kis-is-skatche-wan", meaning swift current or bad river. E. E. Eisenhauer, deputy minister of public works, said in an address to the Weyburn Rotary club.

Mr. Eisenhauer told the Rotary club the province has had a glorious history of brave men surmounting impossible obstacles. The first white man, Henry Kelsey, entered the province in 1892 and the first white man to reach the banks of the Saskatchewan river was Pierre de Laverdure in 1734. The first horse was brought to the province in 1730 and it was called "big dog" by the Indians because it did the work of a dog in hauling goods.

The first agriculture was practiced at Fort LaCrosse in 1753, the first permanent settlement was at Cumberland House in 1774; the first wheat produced at Carlton House in 1820.

Among other firsts were the first Catholic church, at Ile a la Crosse in 1848, the first Anglican church at Stanley in 1853, and grasshoppers reportedly blackened the sky in 1858. The province was formed in 1905 with A. E. Forges being the first lieutenant-governor and Walter Scott the first premier. The first budget, covering 14 months, was $2,087,567.

Mr. Eisenhauer said it is difficult to realize that 70 years ago the Indians were taking white men's scalps, that transportation on land was by ox cart and on water by canoe.

One of the bright pages in the history of the province is the story of the North West Mounted Police. The group was formed in 1873.

The first printed newspaper was the Saskatchewan Herald at Battleford. The founder was Patrick G. Laurie on Aug. 25, 1878. Today agriculture in the province is not limited to wheat alone. The province is rich in livestock, having more horses than any other province, and stands fourth among the provinces in the production of cattle, hogs and sheep.

Mr. Eisenhauer said "we have more farmers paying income tax than any other province in Canada, and one-third of all income tax payments by all the farms of Canada is paid by Saskatchewan farmers. In 1948, 20-

1950 of our farmers paid $5,875,000 in income tax."

Today farming is big business, using 58,000 cars, 28,000 trucks, 72,000 tractors, 91,000 binders, 20,000 threshing machines, and 23,000 combines.

Last year 37 oil companies controlling 62,000,000 acres of land drilled 67 wildcat wells, spending over $10,000,000 in their search. At Lloydminster, 52 new producing wells were drilled from Jan. 1 to Oct., 1950.

In addition to the land, one of the province's greatest resources is the Saskatchewan river, Mr. Eisenhauer said.

Speaking of the Saskatchewan river, Mr. Eisenhauer said "from this river will come power development greater than anything Saskatchewan has seen. Cheap power means industrial development, diversifying our income. Irrigation means security of returns to the farmer, increasing population, manufacturing and processing industries and prosperous communities."

Mr. Eisenhauer also told the Rotary club the province has an enviable record in its social consciousness. Our health and hospital services, air ambulances, the tuberculosis and cancer clinics have made Saskatchewan a good place in which to live. The deaths among whites from tuberculosis are the lowest of any province. The upsurge for control and research with cancer in the newly established clinics puts Saskatchewan in a place of leadership on the continent in combating this killer.

A betatron machine at the university was the first in Canada set up for research and treatment. A new therapy machine, cobalt 60 beam therapy unit, soon to be installed on the campus, maintains our leadership, Mr. Eisenhauer said.

Finger-nail biters are endangering their health because of germs which possibly lie hidden under the nails. Nails should be kept clean, and Saskatchewan farmers. In 1948, 20-

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF WAINWRIGHT NO. 61

Notice to Ratepayers and Lessees

On the advice and recommendation of the Wainwright Agricultural Service Board, Bylaw No. 296 being a Bylaw for the purpose of Prohibiting the Burning of Stubble reads in part:—

"Be it enacted that no person or persons shall willfully burn stubble on any lands within the Boundaries of the Municipal District of Wainwright No. 61 at any time unless a Fire Permit under the authority of the Forests Act being Chapter 43 of the Statutes of Alberta, 1949, and amendments, is issued."

Four reasons are put forward by the Board why the Bylaw was enacted.

1. Fertilizer value from stubble of a thirty bushel crop is equal to $2.40 per acre.
2. Incorporation of Stubble into Top Soil prevents wind and water erosion.
3. Fire can easily get out of hand from stubble to grass lands.
4. Loss of trees from natural bluffs from fire running through them is great.

Fire permits will only be issued to farmers upon investigation by the personnel of the Service Board and only then after it has been shown that stubble cannot be handled with farm implements.

Your close co-operation will be greatly appreciated.
